

Ottawa Sun
July 24

Tango time at Chamber fest

It's the peak of summer and the people who should be running our clubs, theatres and galleries have all decided en masse to head out to a lake and stare at the horizon. But I still managed to find a couple things making noise this week.

Denis
Armstrong
NOW OPEN

The 15th annual Chamber Music Festival kicks off tomorrow at 8 p.m. with a night of Argentinian dancers and music by Tango Notturmo and soprano Isabel Bayrakdarian at Dominion-Chalmers United Church. Then the fun shifts to the Royal Canadian Legion Montgomery Branch on Kent St. at 10:30 p.m. for The Tango Continues. Pianist Andre Laplante joins the Shanghai Quartet for a concert of Romantic music by Chopin and Liszt at Dominion-Chalmers on Saturday at 8 p.m. On Sunday, the Creaking Tree String Quartet performs a free concert at Rideau Hall at 4 p.m.

Tickets are available at the festival website at chamberfest.com

Ottawa's Turkish Festival moves into Confederation Park this weekend with displays of art and demonstrations of the country's soul-stirring folk dances, music and gourmet food.

Admission is free. The festival runs from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Check their website at ottawaturkishfestival.com.

